

Editorial: Welcome to the First Issue of Caspian Journal of Surgery

Pouya Tayebi

Department of Vascular and Endovascular Surgery, School of Medicine, Rouhani Hospital, Babol University of Medical Sciences, Babol, Iran.

Welcome to the inaugural issue of the Caspian Journal of Surgery (CJS), the official scientific journal of Babol University of Medical Sciences. As we embark on this exciting journey, it is with great pride that we introduce CJS as a peer-reviewed, open-access platform committed to advancing surgical knowledge and fostering academic exchange on both national and international levels. In the rapidly evolving field of surgery, it is crucial to maintain a dynamic and responsive platform for the dissemination of high-quality scientific research. The Caspian Journal of Surgery aims to fill this gap by providing a reputable and accessible space for researchers, surgeons, educators, and healthcare professionals to share their innovative work. Whether through original research articles, clinical trials, systematic reviews, case reports, or studies related to surgical education and innovation, CJS seeks to promote collaboration and inspire new ideas in the surgical sciences. We are deeply committed to ensuring that the work we publish exemplifies methodological rigor, scientific originality, clinical relevance, and ethical integrity. Each submission undergoes a rigorous double-blind peer review process, managed by our distinguished editorial board, consisting of academics and clinical experts from renowned institutions around the world. This process not only ensures the quality of the work but also upholds the confidentiality and impartiality essential for scholarly exchange.

At CJS, we strongly believe that open access to scientific knowledge is a cornerstone of academic growth and improved patient care. All articles accepted for publication are freely available to readers worldwide, ensuring that the latest advancements in surgical research and practice are accessible without barriers. This commitment to open access reflects our mission to contribute meaningfully to the global community of surgeons and healthcare professionals. As we move forward, we warmly invite researchers, postgraduate students, faculty members, and practicing surgeons to contribute to the continued growth of CJS. Whether through manuscript submissions, critical commentary, or participation in the peer review process, your involvement will help strengthen the global voice of surgical science and support the future of patient care. Together, we can work to enhance surgical practices and outcomes for patients around the world. We are excited to have you join us in this journey of innovation, collaboration, and excellence in surgery.

Call for Submissions:

We are currently welcoming submissions to the Caspian Journal of Surgery. If you have research, case studies, or reviews that you believe would contribute to the global discussion on surgery, we encourage you to submit your work to CJS. Your contributions will not only add to the growing body of surgical knowledge but also play an integral role in shaping the future of patient care.

Thank you for being part of this exciting new chapter in the world of surgical science. We look forward to your valuable contributions.

Pouya Tayebi
Editor-in-Chief
Caspian Journal of Surgery

© The Author(s).

Publisher: Babol University of Medical Sciences

This work is published as an open access article distributed under the terms of the Creative Commons Attribution 4.0 License (<http://creativecommons.org/licenses/by-nc/4>). Non-commercial uses of the work are permitted, provided the original work is properly cited.